Intro to Transformative Justice in Healthcare

Tiffany Moore is a nurse scientist and Associate Professor at the University of Nebraska Medical Center where she studies the effects of chronic stress on maternal/infant health, specifically the effects of maternal adverse childhood experiences and race-based traumatic stress on perinatal outcomes.

Dr. Moore was a NICU nurse and transport nurse for 10 years before she retired to pursue her PhD in nursing.

Currently, Dr. Moore practices as a Forensic Nurse Examiner for adults and pediatric survivors.

Dr. Moore is member of the NPA executive board where she serves as treasurer and is a member of the NPA Health Equity Committee with Angelique.

She is passionate about empowering all birthing parents with the resources and tools to cope with the chronic stress of childhood trauma and race-based traumatic stress
